Arrest Ruling Party MLA, Deputy Speaker Immediately: LoP Udhayanidhi Stalin Submits Petition to DGP

CHENNAI – 26 Nov, 2026 LoP Udhayanidhi on a press interaction disclosed:- When we went to submit a complaint petition today, we were told that the DGP had gone to attend a training event for the 'Singappen Padai' (Lioness Force). All we want to ask is: what training are you giving this Singappen Padai, and what is their actual job? I am asking both the people of Tamil Nadu and you, the journalists—have you ever seen this Singappen Padai anywhere? The Chief Minister announced this as a major achievement, yet you journalists are witnessing firsthand how severely law and order has deteriorated in Tamil Nadu since this government took office. The people of Tamil Nadu are suffering because of this every single day.

I have repeatedly spoken about this in the Legislative Assembly as well; however, the people of Tamil Nadu saw what the Chief Minister—who is supposed to answer all of this—actually did. I spoke with hard data from a database. I asked several questions in the Assembly about how many murders, sexual assaults, and incidents of drug smuggling have taken place. Instead of giving a direct answer that day, the Chief Minister "time-traveled" back nearly 50 to 60 years and gave completely irrelevant replies. As a result, the people of Tamil Nadu are facing immense hardship every day.

Specifically, over 75 percent of those involved in such violent incidents are functionaries of the ruling party. And by ruling party functionaries, I don't just mean ward secretaries or branch secretaries—district secretaries, ministers, and Members of the Legislative Assembly (MLAs) themselves are involved in such wrongdoings, violence, and sexual assaults. Even when we raised the issue regarding the Srivaikuntam MLA earlier, there was no proper response. Atrocities where several district secretaries have subjected women from their own party to sexual violence are happening right now.

The height of this is that a ruling party legislator, Kallakurichi MLA Arul Vignesh, has been continuously sending obscene messages to a woman officer—the District Collector. Not just in the history of Tamil Nadu, such a shameful incident has never occurred anywhere in the history of India. In addition to sending obscene messages to a District Collector, the MLA went to her camp office while intoxicated and created a ruckus.

They came to power on May 10, and this happened in July itself. Usually, when a new government assumes office, we say there is a "honeymoon period" of six months where no questions should be asked; it seems this MLA and the Chief Minister took that phrase in its literal sense. These incidents have been happening since July 31. Journalists and people on social media began writing about this continuously. Our Member of Parliament and Deputy General Secretary, Kanimozhi Karunanidhi, was the first to bring this news out into the open.

However, they have appointed a minister solely to tell lies. When journalists go and ask him, he—who has made a habit of telling completely unrelated lies—gives evasive answers. 116 days ago, the District Collector had already lodged a complaint with the Chief Secretary. In response, the Chief Secretary told her, "Get yourself transferred to another district and leave." Now, as people dig deeper, these facts are coming out one by one.

Everyone has been talking about the MLA concerned for the past month, yet no action has been taken against him to date. Even yesterday, it took court intervention to get a minor action initiated—it took 116 days just to register an FIR. Through the press, I want to ask the people whether this Chief Minister, who holds the law and order portfolio, has been asleep for 116 days.

Furthermore, ever since the allegation became public, online abusers known as "virtual warriors" have been attacking and making derogatory remarks against the victim herself.

In the complaint petition I submitted to the DGP today, I emphasized that action must also be taken against the Chief Secretary—who tried to cover up the crime despite receiving a complaint on July 31—and that he must be added as an accused in the case. Did the Chief Secretary inform the Chief Minister about this matter or not? Not informing him is a grave mistake; if he did inform him, why has the Chief Minister kept his mouth shut for 114 days until today? Perhaps the Chief Minister is afraid to summon the MLA and ask, "Is what you are doing right?" The people of Tamil Nadu are watching all of this. What answer are the ministers—who earlier defended the government claiming no such incident ever happened—going to give now?

Similarly, everyone saw another incident where Deputy Speaker Ravisankar brutally assaulted a person who came to his house to submit a petition. Once the video went viral, they summoned him in the middle of the night, applied makeup so the injuries wouldn't show, made him sit next to the Deputy Speaker, and released another video of the two laughing and talking like friends. Two or three hours later, that same person gave an interview stating, "They called me, threatened me, and forced me to shoot that video; it is true that the Deputy Speaker beat me." It has been 16 days since that incident, and no action has been taken on that either. Therefore, we have also stated in our petition that the police must take action against the Deputy Speaker.

This sleepy government and sleepy Chief Minister, who have been slumbering for 116 days, must wake up and take proper action, as law and order rests in his hands. Because all of them have spent the last four months working full-time to cover up this crime, we have zero faith in this government or the Chief Minister. Hence, we have submitted a petition demanding that the government suo motu hand this case over to the CBI, and immediately arrest both the MLA and the Deputy Speaker.

We see TVK cadres claiming on social media that government officials remain pro-DMK even after a regime change, which is why such incidents are being fabricated. Leave Tamil Nadu aside—has an incident where someone sent obscene SMS messages to a District Collector, got drunk, and created a ruckus at their camp office ever happened under any regime in any state in India? You came to power promising to bring "big change." Is this the change you brought? The people of Tamil Nadu have started calling it a "stench" (durnaatram) instead of change (maatram).

Furthermore, TVK cadres are countering by alleging that DMK members also face complaints of crimes against women—citing a complaint that Rishivandiyam MLA Vasantham Karthikeyan threatened a woman District Project Director, and another complaint against a youth wing functionary from the same district for marriage fraud.

In the case of Rishivandiyam MLA Vasantham Karthikeyan, a BDO officer had verbally abused a woman worker from an oppressed community who cooks for the breakfast scheme in his constituency. When that worker complained to the MLA, Vasantham Karthikeyan called the officer and merely fulfilled his duty as a legislator by saying, "Why are you scolding her like this? Get the work done politely, don't abuse her." However, without even respecting his position as an MLA, that officer spoke rudely to him, prompting Vasantham Karthikeyan to file a complaint with the District Collector. Stating that the officer speaks disrespectfully to everyone, not just Vasantham Karthikeyan, three others—Vimala, Bhuvaneswari, and Subramanian—have also filed police complaints against that BDO. Therefore, this government is trying to escape blame by pinning it on Vasantham Karthikeyan.

As for Ashik, whom you asked about, he is indeed a youth wing functionary. As soon as that complaint surfaced, we also conducted an inquiry. Nearly three months ago, Ashik himself had filed a complaint against the very woman who has now accused him, alleging that she had cheated him—but the police ignored it and never investigated. The moment an allegation arises against a DMK functionary, they blow it out of proportion to escape their own faults. Even now, the police force is under their control, isn't it? We urge them to take legal action if there is valid evidence. The Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam expects arrests to be made, and the people of Tamil Nadu believe it will happen. We urge the Chief Minister to please wake up from his slumber and do this.
